The Mierisch family has been farming coffee in Nicaragua for over 100 years. They spend their days in the high mountains of Nicaragua's Matagalpa and Jinotega regions. As a family-run operation, they have produced high quality shade-grown coffee on both sides of their families. Two family stories, that end in coffee farming. Long story short, in the early 1900's Bruno Mierisch worked with his son Wilfrido on the coffee farms. Then Wilfrido worked with his boys on the coffee farms, and today his boys work with their sons and daughters on the coffee farms.

La Escondida, has been one of the true transformations that we have achieved since in its beginnings these were lands that were used as areas of pasture and livestock, with minimal rainfall, although it is located in the Jinotega area, they had become a dry corridor, that is to say an arid zone.

From the good management of the soils and plantations of cafes with forestation of suitable shadows, the climatic conditions suitable for coffee cultivation have been improved, currently it is one of the most productive farms and of excellent cup quality.
